To provide for the manner in which the Constitutional Court may exercise its jurisdiction; to confer additional jurisdiction upon the Constitutional Court; to provide for the powers, practice and procedure of the Constitutional Court; to provide for the making of rules and regulations in connection therewith; to make provision for appeals from decisions of inferior courts; and to provide for matters incidental to or connected with the foregoing.

WHEREAS sections 166 and 167 of the Constitution provide as follows—

"166 Constitutional Court

(1) The Constitutional Court is a superior court of record and consists of—

- (a) the Chief Justice and the Deputy Chief Justice; and
- (b) five other judges of the Constitutional Court.

(2) If the services of an acting judge are required on the Constitutional Court for a limited period, the Chief Justice may appoint a judge or a former judge to act as a judge of the Constitutional Court for that period.

(3) Cases before the Constitutional Court—

(a) concerning alleged infringements of a fundamental human right or freedom enshrined in Chapter 4, or concerning the election of a President or Vice-President, must be heard by all the judges of the Court;

(b) other than cases referred to in paragraph (a), must be heard by at least three judges of the Court;

but an Act of Parliament or rules of the Court may provide for interlocutory matters to be heard by one or more judges of the Court.

(4) Judges or former judges appointed to act under subsection (2) may continue to sit as judges of the Constitutional Court after their appointments have expired, for the purpose of dealing with any proceedings commenced before them while they were so acting."

"167 Jurisdiction of Constitutional Court

(1) The Constitutional Court—

(a) is the highest court in all constitutional matters, and its decisions on those matters bind all other courts;

(b) decides only constitutional matters and issues connected with decisions on constitutional matters, in particular references and applications under section 131(8)(b) and paragraph 9(2) of the Fifth Schedule; and

(c) makes the final decision whether a matter is a constitutional matter or whether an issue is connected with a decision on a constitutional matter.

(2) Subject to this Constitution, only the Constitutional Court may—

(a) advise on the constitutionality of any proposed legislation, but may do so only where the legislation concerned has been referred to it in terms of this Constitution;

(b) hear and determine disputes relating to election to the office of President;

- (c) hear and determine disputes relating to whether or not a person is qualified to hold the office of Vice-President; or
 - (d) determine whether Parliament or the President has failed to fulfil a constitutional obligation.
- (3) The Constitutional Court makes the final decision whether an Act of Parliament or conduct of the President or Parliament is constitutional, and must confirm any order of constitutional invalidity made by another court before that order has any force.
- (4) An Act of Parliament may provide for the exercise of jurisdiction by the Constitutional Court and for that purpose may confer the power to make rules of court.
- (5) Rules of the Constitutional Court must allow a person, when it is in the interests of justice and with or without leave of the Constitutional Court—
- (a) to bring a constitutional matter directly to the Constitutional Court;
 - (b) to appeal directly to the Constitutional Court from any other court;

22. Procedure for invalidation of law

- (1) If in any proceedings it is alleged that anything contained in or done under the authority of any law is in contravention of the Constitution and the court decides, as a result of hearing the parties, that the complainant has shown that the court should not accept that the provision of the law concerned is fair, reasonable, necessary and justifiable in a democratic society and should be relied upon by the other party without proof to its satisfaction, it shall issue a rule nisi calling upon the responsible Minister to show cause why that provision should not be declared to be in contravention of the Constitution.
- (2) If in any proceedings it falls to be determined whether any law is in contravention of the Constitution, the Attorney-General shall be entitled to be heard by the court on that question and if in any such proceedings any law is determined by the court to be in contravention of the Constitution, then, whether or not he or she has exercised his or her right to be heard in those proceedings, the Attorney-General shall have the like right with respect to an appeal from that determination as if he or she had been a party to the proceedings.

23. Conflict of constitutional and statutory remedies
